Wayward cat grounds jet

Feb. 11 (UPI) — A Ryanair flight bound for Germany was grounded for two days in Rome after a stowaway cat was found to have climbed into the plane's electrical bay.

The Boeing 737 had been scheduled to take passengers to Germany last week, but the flight was delayed when crew members heard meowing coming from the plane's inner workings.

Engineers discovered the cat was in the vehicle's electrical bay, and their attempts to reach the feline only caused it to flee further into the mechanism.

The plane was grounded, with engineers raising fears that the cat could cause potentially catastrophic damage while in the air. A door was left open and the cat finally exited the plane on its own after about two days on the tarmac.

The plane finally departed for Germany on Monday.

Picking up chopsticks part of CHP work

Feb. 10 (UPI) — California Highway Patrol officers were left playing "a giant game of pick-up sticks" when a truck spilled its load of chopsticks onto the highway. The CHP's Hayward station said on social media that officers responded to a report of a traffic hazard on Interstate 580, near the Redwood Road exit, and arrived to find the "sticky situation."

"Turns out, someone turned the freeway into a giant game of pick-up sticks," the post said. "Unfortunately, this means a local restaurant (See back page—Elsewhere)

A biographer once wrote of Christopher Columbus that "He discovered no island or sea as lonely as himself."

How different for those who trust God!

David wrote, "When You, God, went out before Your people, when You marched through the wilderness ... You provided for the poor!"

The writer of Hebrews echoed those words when he wrote, "I will never leave you nor ever forsake you.."

King Nebuchadnezzar refused to hear the testimony of three young men. He bound them and threw them into a fiery furnace. In amazement, when he looked into the furnace he did not see three men, but four: unharmed and unbound. He shouted, "Servants of the Most High God, come out! Come here!" God went before them, protected them and rescued them.

On one occasion the disciples of Jesus were frightened by the winds and the waves that were threatening them. They were in a little boat with little hope. Then Jesus appeared and said, "Take courage. Don't be afraid. It is I!" He went to them, calmed their fears and then said, "You of little faith. Why did you doubt?"

A Psalmist was traveling through a deep valley with dark shadows. He was filled with great fear as he faced the "unknown." Yet, he was able to say, "I will fear no evil, for You are with me. Your rod and Your staff will comfort me!" He trusted God because He never abandoned Him.

The Lord always goes before us to protect us. He will provide for everything we need now and through eternity.

One night before climbing into bed, Brad knelt with his mother to pray. "Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray Thee Lord, my soul to keep; if I should die before I wake..." There was a long pause and suddenly he stopped praying.

"Go on," said his mother to encourage him.

"I can't," he cried and ran from the room.

A few moments later he returned and finished the prayer, "I pray Thee Lord my soul to take."

"What happened?" his Mother asked.

"Well," he confessed, "just before we knelt to pray, I went into James' room and took all of his toy soldiers and hid them. Then I hid his tanks, cannons and trucks so he couldn't see them. And after I started to pray I had to stop and make everything right because I knew that God wouldn't hear me."

Many times we pray and get no answers. Often we think that God is not willing to hear us or unable to help us. But that is not true.

We cannot knowingly have sin in our hearts and lives and go to God and expect Him to answer our prayers. If we expect God to hear and answer our prayers we must make things right first.

Said the Psalmist, "if I had cherished sin in my heart, the Lord would not have listened." It is only when we willingly confess and forsake our sins that we can expect God to answer our prayers. It may be time to stop in the middle of a prayer, right some wrongs and then pray.

San Joaquin Supervisors want to eliminate same-day voter registration

San Joaquin County Board of Supervisors Advocates for Voter ID Requirements and Elimination of Same-Day Registration

The San Joaquin County Board of Supervisors recently approved letters to state and federal leaders urging changes to election laws to require voter identification for all elections and eliminate same-day voter registration. These measures aim to enhance election integrity, control costs, and bolster public confidence in the electoral process.

"We consistently hear from our constituents on this issue and recognize the importance of bolstering voter confidence in our elections," said Board Chair Paul Canepa. "The Election Advisory Committee's efforts played a key role in guiding this Board to its decision."

Thirty-six states have laws that request or require voters to present identification at the polls. Additionally, more than half of U.S. states do not allow same-day voter registration. While same-day registration was originally implemented to increase voter accessibility, it has presented administrative challenges and contributed to delays in election certification.

California law allows people to register and vote with a provisional ballot up to 14 days before an election, including Election Day. However, processing provisional ballots requires additional staff time, resources, and costs, as each ballot must be verified before it is counted. Both the California Secretary of State and the San Joaquin County Registrar of Voters websites say the registration deadline is 14 days before the election. This discrepancy needs to be fixed to make the rules clear, consistent, and more efficient.

District Four Supervisor Steve Ding, who led the effort by bringing this item to the Board, emphasized, "Requiring ID to vote is simply common sense—it's needed for everyday tasks, so why not for something as important as voting? Same-day registration only adds confusion and costs more to verify voters. Enforcing registration deadlines helps save taxpayer money."

On January 9 the San Joaquin County Election Advisory Committee (EAC) unanimously approved a recommendation supporting these election law changes. The Board of Supervisors reviewed the EAC's recommendation 10 days later and requested the opportunity to review draft letters before finalizing its action.

The San Joaquin County Board of Supervisors is advocating for these reforms to promote transparency and public confidence in the election process.

Storms fill state reservoirs

As a result of significant storms in early February, which resulted in high runoff inflows into Northern California reservoirs, the federal Bureau of Reclamation (BOR) is implementing flood control operations at the Shasta Reservoir. Those operations include doubling water releases from the reservoir, beginning Friday, February 7.

The actions are being undertaken with close coordination between Federal, State and local agencies, according to a press release from Mary Lee Knecht, a spokesperson for the BOR. The BOR coordinates its flood management operations in order to maximize hydropower created by releases from Central Valley Project facilities, including Shasta Dam.

"Federal pumps in the Sacramento-San Joaquin Bay-Delta are currently operating at maximum capacity and storing water in San Luis Reservoir to support south-of-Delta delivery to farms, communities, and wildlife refuges when needed later this year," according to a press release from the BOR on February 6.

Releases from the Shasta Reservoir will be double from the current rate of 30,000 cubic feet per second to 60,000 cfs, beginning Friday, February 7. The releases will be implemented over the day on Friday, increasing to 40,000 cfs by 2 pm, and reaching a full 60,000 by 10 pm.

Keswick Dam, which is located not far downstream from Shasta Dam, will help regulate the flow of the releases from the Shasta Reservoir, which are expected to last at least through the weekend and could be adjusted next week as needed.

Similarly, on the Trinity River, the BOR said, Lewiston Dam releases will increase from 1,500 cfs to 3,500 cfs on Friday. Whiskeytown Dam releases, which are currently at 300 cfs, will remain in place.

Since January 31, the Shasta Reservoir has risen by more than 22 feet, the BOR says. A coordinated team that includes local and state agencies as well as the United States Army Corps of Engineers is working together to implement the water releases.

Sergio Garduño ...*Tribute to former Linden resident

POPLAR BLUFF, MISSOURI—

A Life Remembered: My Father, Sergio Garduño

Tonight, my blood father, Sergio Garduño, passed away—across a country, yet shattering my heart as if he were right beside me. Born in Mexico, he came to California through the hard work of my grandfather during the war, when the United States launched the Bracero Program, offering legal immigrants a chance at a better life in the fields. He was a man of many identities, yet to me, he was simply my father—his only child, his legacy.

Sergio grew up in Linden, a small Italian farming community where everyone knew his name. To some, he was a fighter in high school, a young man with fire in his heart. To others, he was a respected manager in the walnut and cherry orchards, leading laborers with skill and grit. There were those who knew him for his darker, more clandestine pursuits, and others who saw him behind the wheel of a forklift at the big red barn in town. Some remember the days he owned a baseball card shop, while others recall the treehouses and koi ponds he built with his hands. But no matter what chapter of his life they knew him from, the old Italian farmers loved my father—for his respect, his work ethic, and the infectious smile I inherited from him.

For years, I believed I was simply half-Mexican, only to later discover, through DNA tests, that we were Spanish-speaking Natives.

Yet identity, like life itself, is fluid—something my father understood well. He was a man forever searching for his place in this world, like so many of us.

I will never forget the memories we created—the hikes through the wilderness, the nights spent camping under the stars, the thrill of exploring caves and searching for lost treasures in abandoned mining camps. He taught me to value history, to collect old coins, stamps, and relics from the past. But I will also remember the painful times, when schizophrenia took hold of his mind, leading him to cover his walls with lifelike faces drawn in a frenzy of confusion. I inherited his artistic gift, his ability to bring images to life, just as I inherited his resilience.

My father was neither a saint nor a sinner—he simply was a man, flawed and lost at times, but never lacking in heart. I remember the burritos he sent me at school through my aunt, the late-night runs to Food 4 Less for fresh French bread and Mexican cheese, the simple joys of sharing a meal together. He taught me to stand tall, to fight back when necessary. I once watched him take on three men at a gas station—half his age—and win.

To some, he was a demon. To me, he was my dad.

Time and distance created a space between us, but I was blessed to see him just months refried beans, Mexican cheese, and buttery toast. He didn't eat a single bite, only watched me, as if knowing it would be the last time. Looking back, I see now that he was already beginning his journey beyond this life.

Now, I am left without a father. But I have my mother, the woman who raised me, who gave me her laugh, her kindness, her love. She taught me to be humble, to be compassionate, even to those who would try to break me. And as I sit here, shaking, crying, I know that my dad is no longer lost or suffering. He is free—ago. He was so full of life, zipping around on his walker in Missouri, beaming with pride as he spoke of the man I had become. He told me how he had always loved my stepfather, Jim, for doing what he could not—raising me into the man he had always hoped I would be. He shared his struggles with his illness, how it had forced him to step away at times, but he had always known I was safe, cared for.

He told me he was proud of me.

I shared my own struggles with him—my near-death experiences as a sick child, my battles with severe sleep apnea, the things I have seen in the moments between life and death. He listened, never judged, just sat with me in that moment, as only a father could. Then, he made me one final meal—eggs, bacon, free to visit me in my dreams, just as my stepfather does.

I owe a special thanks to my Tia Maria, who stood by him through his illness, who helped him find God in the end. On my last visit, he spoke of the Bible, of his happiness, of watching Fox News and seeing Donald Trump—a man born in Mexico who loved Trump. A paradox that some might find amusing, but one that only proves the complexity of life and identity.

Life is too short for hatred. My father's journey reminds me that we should be proud of this nation, of its foundations built on faith, hard work, and the relentless pursuit of something greater. We are here, if only for a moment, to carve our names into the annals of history before we, too, journey to the stars.

Rest easy, Dad. You are finally free.

Hayley Herzig's Winnebago sturgeon weighed more than 180 pounds, and it took four people more than 20 minutes to haul it through a hole in the ice

By Bob McNally

Hayley Herzig with her 180-pounder, the fourth-largest lake sturgeon ever speared on the Lake Winnebago, Wisconsin system.

The early morning air temperature was only 15 degrees on Feb. 8, when Hayley Herzig, her boyfriend, Charlie Loehr, and his cousin, Ben Loehr, stepped out of their truck and onto the rock-solid surface of Lake Winnebago. They'd parked on the north shore near Oshkosh, Wisconsin, and they headed straight for a wooden ice shanty where they waited for the lake's short spearing season to begin.

"We got there early, before the season opened at 7 a.m.," Herzig tells Outdoor Life. "It was pretty tight inside the shanty with three of us, and all our spearing gear and clothing. But when legal spearing began, we were ready."

Herzig says Charlie and Ben are experienced Winnebago spearfishermen. They had scouted the area well before the opener, drilling test holes through the 18-inch-thick lake ice and dropping sonar devices to check for hot spots.

"They found a good place in 13 feet of water before the season," says Herzig. "So right there we cut a 2-foot by 4-foot large hole in the ice with a chainsaw, because you need a big opening for spearing. Then the shanty was pulled over the hole, and we were all set for opening day."

As part of their preparation, Herzig says they used separate lines to lower an underwater camera and a LiveScope transducer to the bottom of the lake. The group also hung a white coffee mug from a third line to act as a decoy and draw sturgeon in.

"Winnebago is off color this year, so we really needed the camera and sonar to let us know when a sturgeon passed under the shanty," explains Herzig, a nursing student from Fond du Lac. "The sonar was most helpful, and with experience it's easy to tell what a sturgeon looks like on a sonar screen compared to a big pike or other fish."

At 7:05 a.m. that morning, just five minutes into the spearing season, Ben spotted a large sturgeon as it passed under their shanty.

Herzig's boyfriend, Charlie Loehr (left), helped her land the fish by throwing a second spear into the giant sturgeon.

"I couldn't see the fish but we knew it was there, so I threw my 5-prong spear straight down and barbed it in the tail," Herzig says. "It was a lucky shot."

With the spear in the fish's tail, it pulled hard against the rope. The three anglers battled the big sturgeon for about 10 minutes and finally pulled it near the hole. They only saw the fish for a moment, but it was enough time for Charlie to throw a single-prong spear into the middle.

"It put up real fight, against two harpoons with heavy ropes attached," Herzig said. "It fought us for another 10 minutes, then finally tired and we pulled it to the ice hole. That was a little scary – with the big flopping fish, all our gear inside the shanty, wearing heavy clothing, and all of us struggling to get it out of the water and not fall in."

They called their friend Justin Kraus, who was nearby in another shanty. With Kraus' help, they managed to lift the fish out of the hole and onto the ice. Loading the giant sturgeon into the truck bed was a challenge, too, says Herzig.

After spending the rest of their morning in the shanty, they took the fish to be weighed, as required by the DNR, before 1 p.m. They went to the official weigh station at Wendt's on the Lake, a lakeshore restaurant that also serves as a gathering place during spearing season.

After confirming Herzig's fish as a female lake sturgeon, DNR personnel recorded a weight of 180.5 pounds, with a 79.3-inch length. While short of the Winnebago Lake sturgeon record of 212.2 pounds, Herzig's fish is still a giant for the well-known fishery.

Herzig's fish weighed more than 180 pounds and measured 79.3 inches in length, which means it was longer than she is tall.

"They told me it's the fourth largest sturgeon taken in the Winnebago watershed. I've been doing this for five years, mostly with my dad who's been spearing sturgeon for 15 years. But this is my first one I've ever gotten."

Anglers can buy a Winnebago sturgeon spearing license well in advance of the season, with each angler allowed only one fish. The season lasts for 16 days or until a specific harvest cap is reached, and the Wisconsin DNR says 290 sturgeon were speared during opening weekend — with Herzig's being the largest. There were also more than 3,000 ice shanties out on the lake over the weekend, according to the agency.

Herzig says they'll filet her big lake sturgeon, and then either smoke the meat or cut it into pieces for frying. She says the meat is great eating. And although her spearing season is over for the year, she's already planning to go back out with Charlie, Ben, and her dad, all of whom still have licenses. "It's been really exciting," she says. "I was so lucky to get my sturgeon, and I'd love to do it again and help the others get one."

Some monkey business keeps power off for an entire nation

Feb. 10 (UPI) — Officials in Sri Lanka said a monkey in the wrong place at the wrong time was to blame for a power blackout that affected the entire nation.

Energy Minister Kumara Jayakody told reporters at a news conference that the outage was caused by a monkey that came into contact with a grid transformer at the Panadura Power Station, located south of the capital, Colombo.

The outage began at 11 a.m. local time Sunday, and utility officials got to work restoring power, with hospitals and water purification facilities being given top priority.

The Ceylon Electricity Board issued an apology for the blackout on Sunday.

The blackout evoked memories of rolling blackouts that occurred during Sri Lanka's economic crisis in 2022.

Some senior engineers said they have been warning officials for years about the need for upgrades in the power infrastructure.

“These may be the immediate solutions but past governments have failed to act or upgrade the systems. In fact the national power grid is in such a weakened state that frequent island-wide power outages may be expected if there is a disturbance even in one of our lines,” a source familiar with the country's utility system told Sri Lanka's Daily Mirror newspaper.

Amazing apple biter — but why not swallow?

Feb. 10 (UPI) — Serial Guinness World Record-breaker David Rush took his juggling skills — and his snacking prowess — to the extreme by taking 198 bites out of three apples while juggling the fruits for one minute. Rush, who holds the most concurrent Guinness World Records titles, previously set the record for most bites taken out of three apples while juggling at 164 during the 2018 MIT Juggling Convention.

He took aim at his own title during a visit to Guinness World Records headquarters in London.

“The rules are strict so each bite has to be small, precise, and fast,” Rush wrote online.

“There's no time to swallow (even though swallowing is allowed), so I had to spit out the bites while keeping the apples in motion (but only after my mouth couldn't hold anymore to be efficient).”

Rush successfully broke the record with 198 bites — a rate of more than three bites per second.

Boy ‘human calculator’ — but can he balance parent’s checkbook?

Feb. 12 (UPI) — A 14-year-old “human calculator” from India put his mental math to the test and broke six Guinness World Records in a single day.

Aaryan Shukla, 14, of Maharashtra, set his first Guinness World Record about a year ago, when he took on the record for the fastest time to mentally add 50 five-digit numbers on the set of Italian TV series Lo Sho Dei Record. Shukla, who accomplished the feat in a time of only 25.19 seconds, was invited to Dubai by Guinness World Records and now has six more titles to his name.

In a single day, Shukla broke the records for the fastest time to mentally add 100 four-digit numbers (30.9 seconds), fastest time to mentally add 200 four-digit numbers (1 minute, 9.68 seconds), fastest time to mentally add 50 five-digit numbers (18.71 seconds), fastest time to mentally divide a 20-digit number by a ten-digit number (5 minutes, 42 seconds), fastest time to mentally multiply two five-digit numbers (51.69 seconds) and fastest time to mentally multiply two eight-digit numbers (2 minutes, 35.41 seconds).

Shukla, nicknamed the “Human Calculator” by Guinness World Records, said he practices math for five to six hours a day to keep his mind sharp for competitions.

Shukla's father said his family doesn't know where the boy's skills come from.

“We are a normal family. Aaryan is a one in a billion kind of person, but I don't think that we are a family of mental calculators,” he said.

Animals can paint (sometimes better than humans)

Feb. 12 (UPI) — A New York Zoo offered a sneak preview of some of the artwork that will be available at its upcoming gala auction: creations by animals including penguins, giraffes, sloths, capybaras and others.

The Animal Adventure Park and Preserve in Harpursville announced the Dream Big Gala: Night Out on the Town, scheduled for March 15, will feature a silent auction for works of art created by several of the species that call the zoo home.

Zookeepers said they use various methods to encourage the animals to paint as a fun enrichment activity.

“With our penguins as well, the easiest way for me to get them to paint is with food,” Zookeeper Mikayla Conway told WBNG-TV. “They are very food motivated, and if some days they don't feel like using food, they will chase around a cat laser.”

The zoo offered some sneak previews on social media, sharing photos of animals including penguins, capybaras, sloths and giraffes painting.

I ate the whole thing — but where's the ice cream?

Feb. 12 (UPI) — An opossum was treated at a Nebraska animal hospital after wandering into a family's back yard and gorging itself on an entire chocolate mousse cake from Costco.

Kim Doggett said the cake had been placed on a table in her Greta back yard because she ran out of room in the fridge.

“I always have a house full and we cook a lot and when you run out of room in the fridge you just sit it on the table outside in the winter,” Doggett told Forbes.

She said her son took some fresh-made peanut butter balls outside to cool and discovered an opossum was curled up on the outdoor sectional, which was covered in chocolate paw prints.

“The cake had been knocked off the table and was sitting on the floor in front of where she was,” Doggett told the Omaha World-Herald. “The cover was off, and it was almost gone.”

The opossum was not moving, and appeared to be panting.

“The opossum looked a little distressed,” she said. “We thought we better call the Humane Society and get this guy checked out.”

Doggett said she couldn't find any information online on whether chocolate is dangerous to opossums, but she knew the treat was toxic to dogs, so she figured it was better to be safe than sorry.

A Nebraska Humane Society animal control officer took the opossum to Nebraska Wildlife Rehab, which posted a photo of the animal to social media along with an intake note reading: “Opossum was brought in due to having eaten an entire Costco chocolate cake.”

“Everybody was posting that this was their spirit animal,” Doggett said.

Veterinarians treated the opossum with activated charcoal to neutralize any potential toxicity from the chocolate. She was also found to have a high level of lead, likely from eating local insects.

The opossum is now being treated for the lead in her system and will be released in a few weeks, rehab officials said. “With some time in rehab (and a diet reset), this choco-holic should be stabilized enough to return to the wild but until then, she is definitely a little cranky about our strict ‘zero chocolate’ policy,” the rehab said on social media.
